On Attracting Foreign Visitors

The United States, long a promised land for the world's homeless and oppressed, has been only to a minor extent a goal for world travelers. Language barriers, red tape involved in getting into the country, and relatively high transportation and other costs have combined to hold the inflow of foreign tourists to relatively small dimensions.

This year, however, the Commerce Department is counting on "hard sell" in the form of an unprecedented marketing campaign to lure foreign tourists and help ease the U.S. balance of payments problem. Congress did its bit last year by setting up a U. S. Travel Service and giving it an initial budget of $2.5 million. The agency recently began running ads in European magazines aimed at convincing foreigners they can tour America for $98 a week and avoid annoying entry requirements while getting a warm welcome.

U. S. and Canadian railroads are trying to help out, too, by offering, beginning yesterday, 15 per cent coach fare reductions from all ports to points in this country or Canada, for foreigners only. The nation's two major bus lines are offering 99-day grand circle tours from coast to coast, at a cost of $99, again for foreign

A trip to the United States will still remain a dream to the $35 a week London railway worker. But many West Europeans can afford such tours and may take the plunge once the psychological barriers have been put aside. Americans last year spent $1 billion more on travel abroad than foreigners spent here - a gap equal to about 40 per cent of the nation's $2.5 billion balance of payments deficit. If for no other reason, this gap provides a compelling reason for Americans in every walk of life to make the foreign visitors feel at home.

Methods Of Taxation

Representative George M. Rhodes wrote to a reader of this column as follows: "The tax bill had my support because it would enable the Federal government to receive at least $600 million in tax revenues that escape the Treasury every year. The legislation imposes no new tax.

The method of collecting taxes is as important and can be as brutal as the tax itself. When the income tax was accepted by the American people, it was said that the tax would not become burdensome.

For most Americans, the tax takes about 20 percent of personal income. There are, of course, deductions which give some relief, but the burden is becoming unconscionable, particularly as there is a rise in prices due, in part, to excessive corporation taxes as well as many hidden taxes. It must be taken for granted that in this time of war, the government must have enormous sums of money. Each orbiting effort, each bomb testing, runs into millions of dollars. This burden must be carried by the American people until we are safe from conquest by Soviet Russia. Our first problem is national security. On the other hand, the income tax is too violent a method for gathering funds for the government in a capitalist country. It destroys incentive. It leaves young people without hope. It encourages cheating. It drives surplus money out of the country. The times require a radical approach to taxation to get the country moving. I have, for many years, recommended the transaction tax as a substitute for the personal income tax. Perhaps the transaction tax is not the best remedy, but a remedy must be found because both the personal income tax and the corporate income tax are too damaging to the morale of the country. What is the moral basis of our economic system?

It is that the individual labors to provide for himself and his family, to set aside an estate to support his old age and disabilities, to educate his children and to improve their status in the community and to leave something over for them when he dies.

All the social security devices have not succeeded in making the American people dependent upon government. Americans still want to earn their own way; want to build their own lives around a family; want to form the pattern of their own lives. This we might call the capitalist system, the free enterprise system, but a better term for it is the System of Free Individuals joined together in families and living by mutual respect and aid.

The mechanism of this system is the exchange of goods, services and labor by means of money. Government, in such a system, rightfully performs only such tasks as individuals or groups of individuals cannot perform privately. Because of war and economic miscalculation, during the past half century, the tasks that have fallen to government or which government has assumed have grown more numerous.

For instance, the task of keeping the streets clean is a proper government function, long recognized and relatively inexpensive, but the orbiting of the Earth, the search for means to control weather, the need to maintain an equality of intricate defense involve new and ultra-expensive governmental costs. These costs force upon the individual as well as upon government a restudy and a revision of the tax methods of the nation, which require a greater vigilance against cheating but a gentler approach to the individual and the corporation lest our economic system and morale destroyed not only by the amount of taxation but by the methods of taxation. Confidence in the system of government can be destroyed by the tax

From a political standpoint, this subject is extremely important. The present Administration is making a valiant effort to halt the inflation which is like a rotting disease. Psychologically the attempt to do it by means of taxes was tried by the Roosevelt Administration which used taxes to alter the social system of the country. The method prolonged the 1929 Depression until 1938.

The Kennedy Administration would be well-advised to stimulate confidence in the economy of the country and its future. No one man knows all the answers to this question of tax reform, nor can it be left to the economists alone. It requires a very thorough study in which both the theoretician and the practical man play

'Y'Know — This Could Be Dangerous'

Columnist Suggests Seven Points For Preventing Communism In U.S.

ABOARD THE SS DELTA QUEEN-Being out here on the broad Mississippi River with no telephones, no telegrams, and no distractions is conducive to thinking about the might and majesty of what man has wrought.

This has set me to thinking about the favorite topic of discussion on the part of great many would-be pilots of the nation recently-our failures to combat Communism. They have seen Communists behind every bedpost, have predicted the USA was on the way to becoming an arm of the Kremlin, and some have charged that because I listened to and reported the views of Nikita Khrushchev for two days last summer, I am pro-Communist.

It so happens that I know something about combatting Communism, having been the first newsman to report the Soviet-Canadian spy ring, having uncovered the theft of the B-29 blueprints, helped put across the Friendship Train and the democracy letters to Italy that turned the tide of the first Italian elections, and having organized the freedom balloons into Poland and Czechoslovakia at a time when the Iron Curtain was so rigid not even a Fuller brush salesman could get through.

And having listened carefully to those who would combat Communism by preaching hate and suspicion of their fellow Americans, I would like to outline my own seven points for preventing

By Drew Pearson

Communism. I'll be brief. Here

1. The Elimination Of Poverty-When I get letters from mothers who are struggling to feed their children and whose husbands don't have jobs, I know they and the children they are bringing up could be converts to Communism. Most people have forgotten that the young Communists of the 1930's were the product of the depression. It was those harsh. cruel, heartless years of no hope, of pitiful men selling apples on street corners that brought on Communism, just as it was the harsh hopelessness of czarist rule that brought Communism to Rus-

2. Honesty-Corruption in high places, and low places too, is another way of inducing Communism. A Democratic - Republican form of government must be an honest government. Likewise our capitalistic system of business must be honest. Once either loses high ethical standards, then is the time to begin worrying about Communism

When the Justice Department indicated the port manager of Galveston, E. H. Thornton Sr., for surreptitiously mixing wheat unfit for human consumption with good wheat and labeling it A-1 wheat, justice was right. The Justice Department knew it must keep a high standard of government honesty. And when Gov. Allan Shivers flew to Washington and persuaded President Eisenhower to drop the indictment he was

The Soviet, in my opinion, carried things too far when it recently gave the death sentence to a Russian grain official who likewise misbranded wheat. But they also knew that the first standard of good government is honesty.

3. Respect Of Government-This goes hand in hand with honesty. If we don't respect our government officials we have the right, by means of the ballot, to change them. But if we lose respect for too many of them we may want to change our system. That's why it's to important to keep government fair and honest, so as to keep respect for and confidence in government

4. Respect For Religion-Some of those who are beating the tomtoms loudest about the dangers of Communism are the Biblepounding fundamentalist preachers to the extreme right, and one of their stocks in trade is to smear their fellow preachers as Communists. The Rev. Billy James Hargis claims that the National Council of Churches "Aids and abets Communism."

But the more you undermine churches and the more you destroy the influence of religion, the more you aid Communism. The first step taken by most Com-munist governments has been to shut down the churches and curb the clergy. Yet the Bible-pounding fundamentalists, who make such a display of teaching anti-Communism, are probably the greatest single voices undermining the churches.

5. Equality of Opportunity and Fair Competition - Monopoly is one step that makes it easy for a Communist take-over. Communism thrives on monopoly; in fact is monopoly. Under Communism the government owns and runs everything. There is no private business or small business.

Therefore when you stamp out little business, or little labor, you take a step which could eventualy make it easier for Communism. This applies to big labor just as much as it does to big business. The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in New York which put across a five-hour day at five dollars an hour, with a severe restriction of apprentices, is just as guilty as American Telephone and Telegraph which operates the biggest monopoly in the USA and wants to expand it by taking over the communications satellite

6. Respect For The Dignity Of Man - The individual isn't important under the Communist system. He is subordinated to the state. But under the Judaic-Christian philosophy, the dignity of man is all important-and that is true regardless of his color, his wealth, or his religion.

The more we respect and care for our fellow men the stronger we make our system. When we spread hate and intolerance we're playing into the hands of those who would like to see this country go Communist.

7. Strength - By this I don't mean merely military and physical strength, though in this day and age they are important. also mean educational strength, cultural strength. scientific strength, and moral and spiritual strength.

We have neglected our schools at a time when the Communist world has spent money hand-overfist strengthening its entire educational system. We once ranked first in science. But of late we have turned out more insurance salesmen, stock brokers, and jazz experts than scientists, so that Russia has forged ahead of us in the science of space.

The average schoolteacher, in both our farm areas and big cities, can do more to combat Communism in a quiet, unsensational, non-name-calling way than almost any other person in America. But we don't give him or her either the tools or a living wage

These are my seven principles for combating Communism.

The Helicopter Missions In South Viet Nam

CAN THO, South Viet Nam

At this season, when peasants burn the rice stubble to restore their fields, the bright air is a with smoke, even at 6,000 feet. The competing noises of the big helicopter's rotors and engine are deafening, deadening, downright

The sense of being trapped in an aerial cement mixer is just beginning to be a bit oppressive when suddenly the little delta town of Rach Gia comes into sight, lying on a river among palm gardens, with an airport on its flank. Swiftly the helicopter descends. Swiftly 12 wiry little Vietnamese Rangers clamber

Soon the air loses its sharp smokey tang, for now the helicopter is traversing wild country, swampy and uncultivated. Somewhere ahead, in this empty quarter of the Camau delta, there is a little patch that is farmed—a little patch isolated and normally impossible to reach except by the narrow waterways that, crisscross the whole delta. Here, in this remote refuge, the commander of the Communist guerrillas in this province has set up his command post. safe against all but one sort of surprise attack.

To surprise, to envelope, to catch the Communist leader and his troops, are now the missions of the helicopters of the 57th Transportation Squadron and the two companies of Vietnamese soldiers whom they are carrying.

For one passenger, at least, it is a new way of going into a fight. What will it be like? one asks oneself. And then, quite suddenly, a patch of brighter green shows up ahead. The helicopter all but plummets downwards. The soldiers fan out rapidly, running hunched over, through a dry rice field. And our helicopter and all the others take the air again, looking for all the world like a palm hut standing by a little canal. Off to the right appears one of the American advisory officers, red-haired Capt. Jack Cantrell. "I think we landed just a scosh off target," says the captain a bit glumly, as Capt. Nghe, the tough Vietnamese Ranger commander puts out men on the flanks and prepares to sweep for-

It is a long, hot, toilsome sweep. The Rangers are on the right bank of the main canal, and a company of the Civil Guard are on the left bank. The untended canal boats, loaded to the gunwales with the pineapple harvest, show that there was a busy life here not long ago; but at first there seems to be no life now. The sun is broiling. The feeder to the left pour round after into a canals, just too wide to jump, are slimey work to ford. Then the toisome monotony is broken by another quick snicksnick and another burst of fire. This time an excited soldier races in from the flank with a pitiful bundle of Chinese medicine, political tracts, and carefully written notebooks. The soldier has found and killed the medical officer on the staff of the Communist provincial commander. This little success is followed by another. Five black-clad Viet Cong troops are discovered huddled, neckdeep in water, under the overhanging bank of a feeder canal.

So the sweep goes forward, slowly and methodically, for a long, hot couple of hours. The bag is meager enough-the medical officer killed; a considerable

GOOD SHOW - A fellow with some friends whose admiration of him is more apparent than their reliability is Sen. Clifford P. Case, New Jersey Republican.

Case was mystified recently to receive a letter from a noted jurist complimenting him for his appearance on a nationally televised panel show and concluding with the accolade: "I was proud of you.

Trouble was that Case had not appeared on the show mentioned. and in acknowledging the compliment told his admirer so. Back came the unabashed reply: "You were right. Forgive the error. The compliment is the same.'

SENATE RACE - The word in Washington is that relations befire. As though a signal, troops tween President Kennedy and House Speaker John McCormack, never very good, are being strained further by the fact that their kin are contesting for the Massachusetts Democratic nomination for the Senate.

Both the President's brother, Ted Kennedy, and McCormack's nephew, Edward McCormack, are seeking the nomination. Officially, each is keeping his family out of things, but behind the scenes, both the speaker and the President are deeply involved in trying to influence the outcome.

Young Kennedy is figured a two-to-one favorite to beat Mc-Cormack. Regardless of who wins. it'll be a long time before either of their more prominent relatives will greet the other heartily and mean it.

ously revealed and destroyed by its own explosion when a palm hut is burned because Viet Cong flags are found in it; and nine prisoners taken. The main body of the enemy plainly slipped out of the way in the nick of time. The little liaison plane endlessly cache of ammunition simultane-

making its turns overhead reports the enemy's main body-about a hundred men-in flight across the fields about two kilometers away. An air strike is called for; and before long fighter planes are overhead. Again and again, they make their vicious dives, their rockets thundering, their machine guns furiously chattering. An other sweep, in the direction of the fighters' target area, is wearily decided on. Once more the wiry little troops fan out on the flanks. The march is across rice fields, black from the stubble-burning, and through thickets of high grass and reeds, which the liaison plane searches for ambushed men, flying perilously low. There are more feeder canals. There is another main canal with more abandoned boats and more huts from which women and children silently peer. But the sun is westering. Quite suddenly, as if from nowhere, a helicopter returns to pick up a couple of higher-ranking American staff officers who had "come along to get a feel of this kind of show." Capt Nghe and his Rangers. Capt. Cantrell, and the men of the Civil Guard company all turn to wave as the helicopter ascends again and sets its course for the delta's capital here in Can Tho.

"We catch a few of them every time, and a lot of them every third or fourth time," says the helicopter pilot philosophically, after he hears the day's score. 'Anyway I guess that Communist provincial commander will have to find himself a new command post after this day's work; and when he does we'll go get him there.

Whaddya Know? — Part One

has been neglected. Here, men shed their inhibitions and pontificate in matters which, if discussed at home, would lead only to derisive laughter. Sometimes, in the saloon, such discussions lead to an invitation to step out in the alley, but that's another story.

To sto, the fisticuffs, two English pub owners, Norris and Ross McWhirter, have written a book called "Guinness Book of World Records" published by Stirling Publishing Co. It will, I suppose, be kept under every bar so that when the discussion becomes laud and profane, the bartender can reach for the book, and say: "Boys, just a minute . .

Of course, these may be the bartender's last words, or he may awaken with a shot glass between his teeth, but this only proves that men do not like to listen to the voice of reason. The records in the book, just to give you an idea, encompass man, subjects: Tallest Woman: Dolores Pullard, of De Quincy, Louisiana, She is 8 feet 2 inches. At the age of 7 she was 7 feet tall. Smallest Man was Mr. Geoffrey Hudson who, in the year 1649, was 18 inches tall and 30 years of age. Heaviest Human: Robert E. Hughes, of Fish Hook, Illinois. In 1958, he was 1,069 pounds. The Lightest Man was Hopkin Hopkins, of Wales. He lived to be 17, and weighed 12 pounds at his death. The Oldest Human was Pierre Joubert of Charlesbourg, Canada, who died in 1814 at the authenticated age of 113 years, 124 days. Mrs. Fedor Vassilet, of Russia, had the Most Babies: 69 in 27 confinements. Most Fingers: A Spaniard, who had 26. A Chinese priest had fingernails measuring 221/2 inches. The Longest Record For Hiccups was 7 years, attained by Jack O'Leary of Los Angeles, who hicced 30,000,000 times. The Smallest Waist was attained by Mmle. Polaire, a French actress, and it was 13 inches around. The Most Surgical Operations record belongs to Lionel De Witt, who stepped on a land mine at El Alamein. He continued to live after 410 trips to the operating room. The All-Time Genius is John Stuart Mill, whose I. Q. was "over 200" and who studied Greek at the age of 3. Biggest Animal is the blue whale, 108 feet long, weighing 131 tons. Fastest Animal

The United States, long a promised land for the world's homeless and oppressed, has been only to a minor extent a goal for world travelers. Language barriers, red tape involved in getting into the country, and relatively high transportation and other costs have combined to hold the inflow of foreign tourists to relatively small dimensions.

This year, however, the Commerce Department is counting on "hard sell" in the form of an unprecedented marketing campaign to lure foreign tourists and help ease the U.S. balance of payments problem. Congress did its bit last year by setting up a U. S. Travel Service and giving it an initial budget of $2.5 million. The agency recently began running ads in European magazines aimed at convincing foreigners they can tour America for $98 a week and avoid annoying entry requirements while getting a warm welcome.

U. S. and Canadian railroads are trying to help out, too, by offering, beginning yesterday, 15 per cent coach fare reductions from all ports to points in this country or Canada, for foreigners only. The nation's two major bus lines are offering 99-day grand circle tours from coast to coast, at a cost of $99, again for foreign

A trip to the United States will still remain a dream to the $35 a week London railway worker. But many West Europeans can afford such tours and may take the plunge once the psychological barriers have been put aside. Americans last year spent $1 billion more on travel abroad than foreigners spent here - a gap equal to about 40 per cent of the nation's $2.5 billion balance of payments deficit. If for no other reason, this gap provides a compelling reason for Americans in every walk of life to make the foreign visitors feel at home.

Methods Of Taxation

Representative George M. Rhodes wrote to a reader of this column as follows:

"The tax bill had my support because it would enable the Federal government to receive at least $600 n in tax revenues that escape the Treasury every year. The legislation imposes no new tax.

The method of collecting taxes is as important and can be as brutal as the tax itself. When the income tax was accepted by the American people, it was said that the tax would not become burdensome. For most Americans, the tax takes about 20 percent of personal income. There are, of course, deductions which give some relief, but the burden is becoming unconscionable, particularly as there is a rise in prices due, in part, to excessive corporation taxes as well as many hidden taxes. It must be taken for granted that in this time of war, the government must have enormous sums of money. Each orbiting effort, each bomb testing, runs into millions of dollars. This burden must be carried by the American people until we are safe from conquest by Soviet Russia. Our first problem is national security. On the other hand, the income tax is too violent a method for gathering funds for the government in a capitalist country. It destroys incentive. It leaves young people without hope. It encourages cheating. It drives surplus money out of the country.

The times require a radical approach to taxation to get the country moving. I have, for many years, recommended the transaction tax as a substitute for the personal income tax. Perhaps the transaction tax is not the best remedy, but a remedy must be found because both the personal income tax and the corporate income tax are too damaging to the morale of the country.

What is the moral basis of our economic system? It is that the individual labors to provide for himself and his family, to set aside an estate to support his old age and disabilities, to educate his children and to improve their status in the community and to leave something over for them when he dies.

All the social security devices have not succeeded in making the American people dependent upon government. Americans still want to earn their own way: want to build their own lives around a family; want to form the pattern of their own lives. This we might call the capitalist system, the free enterprise system, but a better term for it is the System of Free Individuals joined together in families and living by mutual respect and aid.

The mechanism of this system is the exchange of goods, services and labor by means of money. Government, in such a system, rightfully performs only such tasks as individuals or groups of individuals cannot perform privately. Because of war and economic miscalculation, during the past half century, the tasks that have fallen to government or which government has assumed have grown more numerous.

For instance, the task of keeping the streets clean is a proper government function, long recognized and relatively inexpensive, but the orbiting of the Earth, the search for means to control weather, the need to maintain an equality of intricate defense involve new and ultra-expensive governmental costs. These costs force upon the individual as well as upon government a restudy and a revision of the tax methods of the nation, which require a greater vigilance against cheating but a gentler approach to the individual and the corporation lest our economic system and morale be destroyed not only by the amount of taxation but by the methods of taxation. Confidence in the system of government can be destroyed by the tax

From a political standpoint, this subject is extremely important. The present Administration is making a valiant effort to halt the inflation which is like a rotting disease. Psychologically the attempt to do it by means of taxes was tried by the Roosevelt Administration which used taxes to alter the social system. of the country. The method prolonged the 1929 Depres-

The Kennedy Administration would be well-advised to stimulate confidence in the economy of the country and its future. No one man knows all the answers to this question of tax reform, nor can it be left to the economists alone. It requires a very thorough study in which both the theoretician and the practical man play

Columnist Suggests Seven Points For Preventing Communism In U.S.

ABOARD THE SS DELTA QUEEN-Being out here on the broad Mississippi River with no telephones, no telegrams, and no distractions is conducive to thinking about the might and majesty of what man has wrought This has set me to thinking about the favorite topic of discussion on the part of great many would-be pilots of the nation recently-our failures to combat Communism. They have seen Communists behind every bedpost, have predicted the USA was on the way to becoming an arm of the Kremlin, and some have charged that because I listened to and reported the views of Nikita Khrushchev for two days last summer, I am pro-Communist.

It so happens that I know something about combatting Communism, having been the first newsman to report the Soviet-Canadian spy ring, having uncovered the theft of the B-29 blueprints, helped put across the Friendship Train and the democracy letters to Italy that turned the tide of the first Italian elections, and having organized the freedom balloons into Poland and Czechoslovakia at a time when the Iron Curtain was so rigid not even a Fuller brush salesman could get through

And having listened carefully to those who would combat Communism by preaching hate and suspicion of their fellow Americans. I would like to outline my own seven points for preventing

Communism. I'll be brief. Here

1. The Elimination Of Poverty-When I get letters from mothers who are struggling to feed their children and whose husbands don't have jobs, I know they and the children they are bringing up

could be converts to Communism. Most people have forgotten that the young Communists of the 1930's were the product of the depression. It was those harsh, cruel, heartless years of no hope, of pitiful men selling apples on street corners that brought on Communism, just as it was the harsh hopelessness of czarist rule that brought Communism to Rus-

2. Honesty-Corruption in high places, and low places too, is another way of inducing Communism. A Democratic - Republican form of government must be an honest government. Likewise our capitalistic system of business must be honest. Once either loses high ethical standards, then is the time to begin worrying about Communism.

When the Justice Department indicated the port manager of Galveston, E. H. Thornton Sr., for surreptitiously mixing wheat unfit for human consumption with good wheat and labeling it A-1 wheat, justice was right. The Justice Department knew it must keep a high standard of government honesty. And when Gov. Allan Shivers flew to Washington and persuaded President Eisenhower to drop the indictment he was

The Soviet, in my opinion, carried things too far when it recently gave the death sentence to a Russian grain official who likewise misbranded wheat. But they also knew that the first standard of good government is honesty.

3. Respect Of Government—This goes hand in hand with honesty. If we don't respect our government officials we have the right, by means of the ballot, to change them. But if we lose respect for too many of them we may want to change our system. That's why it's to important to keep government fair and honest, so as to keep respect for and confidence in government.

4. Respect For Religion-Some of those who are beating the tomtoms loudest about the dangers of Communism are the Biblepounding fundamentalist preachers to the extreme right, and one of their stocks in trade is to smear their fellow preachers as Communists. The Rev. Billy James Hargis claims that the National Council of Churches "Aids and abets Communism."

But the more you undermine churches and the more you destroy the influence of religion, the more you aid Communism. The

"Boys, just a minute. Of course, these may be the bartender's last words, or he may awaken with a shot glass between his teeth, but this only proves that men do not like to listen to the voice of reason. The records in the book, just to give you an

Smallest Man was Mr. Geoffrey Hudson who, in the year 1649, was 18 inches tall and 30 years of age. Heaviest Human: Robert E. Hughes, of Fish Hook, Illinois. In 1958, he was 1,069 pounds. The Lightest Man was Hopkin Hopkins, of Wales. He lived to be 17, and weighed 12 pounds at his death. The Oldest Human was Pierre Joubert of Charlesbourg, Canada, who died in 1814 at the authenticated age of 113 years, 124 days.

munist governments has been to shut down the churches and curb the clergy. Yet the Bible-pounding fundamentalists, who make such a display of teaching anti-Communism, are probably the greatest single voices undermining the churches. 5. Equality of Opportunity and Fair Competition - Monopoly is one step that makes it easy for a Communist take-over. Communism thrives on monopoly; in fact is monopoly. Under Communism the government owns and runs everything. There is no private business or small business.

Therefore when you stamp out little business, or little labor, you take a step which could eventually make it easier for Communism. This applies to big labor just as much as it does to big business. The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in New York which put across a five-hour day at five dollars an hour, with a severe restriction of apprentices, is just as guilty as American Telephone and Telegraph which operates the biggest monopoly in the USA and wants to expand it by taking over the communications satellite.

6. Respect For The Dignity Of Man - The individual isn't important under the Communist system. He is subordinated to the state. But under the Judaic-Christian philosophy, the dignity of man is all important-and that is true regardless of his color, his wealth, or his religion.

The more we respect and care for our fellow men the stronger we make our system. When we spread hate and intolerance we're playing into the hands of those who would like to see this country go Communist

7. Strength - By this I don't mean merely military and physical strength, though in this day and age they are important. I also mean educational strength, cultural strength, scientific strength, and moral and spiritual strength.

We have neglected our schools at a time when the Communist world has spent money hand-overfist strengthening its entire educational system. We once ranked first in science. But of late we have turned out more insurance salesmen, stock brokers, and jazz experts than scientists, so that Russia has forged ahead of us in the science of space.

The average schoolteacher, in both our farm areas and big cities, can do more to combat Communism in a quiet, unsensational, non-name-calling way than almost any other person in America. But we don't give him or her either the tools or a living wage

These are my seven principles for combating Communism.

Narrows Park Rezoning Bid Is Rejected

Zoning Board Holds Hearing

The LaVale Zoning Board last night turned down a request to rezone the Narrows Park area from Residence A to Commercial A following a public hearing at the LaVale Fire Hall at which more than 30 residents of LaVale said they were opposed to the

Two other items which drew no opposition at the hearing were approved by the board, according to Lloyd H. Buchanan, chairman. One, effective immediately, requires that owners of vacant lots in Residential A and Commercial A zones cut or mow the grass and/or weeds to a minimum height of six inches at least twice each year between May 1 and September 1. This was requested by the LaVale Civic Improvement Association.

The other item requires a $25 fee with each application for rezoning and the advertising of each public hearing. Previously no fee has been collected on rezoning applications.

Applicant Alone On the major item of business last night only George F. Hazelwood Jr., who owns the land, spoke in favor of the rezoning plan. He said a builder wishes to construct a Lane Bryant store on the property just west of Park Contested Offices: Place Methodist Church.

Leading the opposition to the rezoning was Rev. Melvin D. Hughson, pastor of Park Place Methodist Church, who read a two-page typewritten statement in which he stressed that under the 1957 act of the General Assembly which allowed for the establishment of the LaVale Zoning Board Circus Tickets the board has no recourse but to deny the petition to rezone the Available At

Zoning Board Holds Hearing

The LaVale Zoning Board last night turned down a request to rezone the Narrows Park area from Residence A to Commercial A following a public hearing at the LaVale Fire Hall at which more than 30 residents of LaVale said they were opposed to the change.

Two other items which drew no opposition at the hearing were approved by the board, according to Lloyd H. Buchanan, chairman. One, effective immediately, requires that owners of vacant lots in Residential A and Commercial A zones cut or mow the grass height of six inches at least twice each year between May 1 and September 1. This was requested by the LaVale Civic Improvement

The other item requires a $25 fee with each application for rezoning and the advertising of each public hearing. Previously no fee has been collected on re zoning applications.

Applicant Alone On the major item of business last night only George F. Hazelwood Jr., who owns the land, spoke in favor of the rezoning plan. He said a builder wishes to construct a Lane Bryant store on the property just west of Park Contested Offices: Place Methodist Church.

Leading the opposition to the rezoning was Rev. Melvin D. Hughson, pastor of Park Place Methodist Church, who read a two-page typewritten statement in which he stressed that under the 1957 act of the General Assembly which allowed for the establishment of the LaVale Zoning Board Circus Tickets the board has no recourse but to deny the petition to rezone the Available At land in question.
